

David Harrell's Success Story

For David Harrell, peace of mind in healthcare was a gift he never expected to receive—but it's one that has profoundly impacted his life. David, a 62-year-old pre-construction manager from east of the Dallas-Fort Worth area, was facing escalating healthcare costs due to his medical needs. When his company decided to switch from a fully funded insurance program to a self-funded one, David was concerned about the financial burden his care would place on his small company. With his annual medical expenses totaling around half a million dollars, he feared these costs would significantly increase the premiums for his colleagues and jeopardize his company's financial stability.

As part of the transition to a self-funded insurance model, David's employer introduced the Samaritan Fund. Initially skeptical, David reached out to learn more, asking multiple questions and double-checking every detail. Despite his initial doubts, the Samaritan Fund soon became his trusted partner, covering the high premiums that would otherwise have been beyond his reach. David, a numbers-driven estimator by profession, could see the massive difference this support made—not just for him, but for his company and co-workers. The monthly premiums covered by the Fund saved his employer from the potential of drastic cost increases.

Reflecting on the journey, David emphasizes the critical role the Samaritan Fund plays in supporting individuals and their families through challenging times. "I just want to say thank you to my sponsor and to the Samaritan Fund for providing me peace of mind. It means an incredible amount to me and to my family," he shared.

Today, David continues to encourage others facing similar situations to explore their options, ask questions, and lean on resources like the Samaritan Fund. His story exemplifies our mission: giving the peace of mind to heal.

David's story is a testament to the powerful impact of the Samaritan Fund. It's a reminder of why we work tirelessly to ensure that those in need can focus on recovery, not on finances. Thank you to our donors for making these life-changing stories possible.
